- Connect Emily Ridout with Duvall and Carnation mayors to share Love Snoqualmie Valley on their platforms

From Tami Jones

- Michelle Enebo is working with local restaurants to help provide for medical staff (saw this on a facebook page) and could be a good resource for how to do this for another sector.

Healthy Community Coalition

4-16-20 Meeting Notes

Question from Amy Ockerlander

- Emily - do you participate in the Duvall Chamber or track their website? They have been doing a great job gathering resources, so if not, there might an opportunity for partnership.

From Carrie Harris

- I have had extra food after our food bank closes, so much so that our regular after pick up group could not take it all - it was mostly muffins and cupcakes - is there any group that could use this type of food???

Snoqualmie Valley Community Network (Board) and Love Snoqualmie Valley (volunteer)

Ken Heikkila

- Wondering about those who do not have a social network or are our Spanish speakers – are they getting the information that they need?
- Concerned about those individuals who are missing at the moment and how to reach them
- ken.heikkila@gmail.com

Zach Hall – Question out to the group

- What is the relationship between Snoqualmie Shelter Services and the community like? Is there any tension or special support the shelters need?

Group Response:

- The city of Snoqualmie and shelter services have a great relationship – people are moving back to living outside the concern with this is, how can we set them up to not further spread the virus and keep them as safe as possible?
- Getting overwhelmed with requests for living assistance
- The county has some hotels for COVID isolation – utilize these additional spaces
- City of Issaquah has a hotel for isolation, assessment and recovery – this hotel is also being used for those experiencing homelessness who do not have a way to self-isolate. There are some beds in the Issaquah facility

Jennifer Kirk

- jenniferk@svshelterservices.org
- A lot of our focus is on the less vulnerable and how we can support them to camp individually and responsibly

From the Snoqualmie Valley Food Bank

- Idea – we are seeing offers of donations for take-out we can route the donations to local restaurants for ready to cook meals for our families in need
